

1. what is c language ?

c is a general purpose programming. It is used to write system software like operating systems, and Application Programs Because it is fast efficient and easy to use.

2. what are the applications of c language ?

c is used in operating systems embedded systems compiler and game development. It is also used for hardware level programming

3. what is variable ?

A variable is a symbolic name or container that stores a value which can change during a program execution.

4. what are different types in c language programming

~~A #~~ these are small programs written to the understand basic syntax, variables, operators, input / output . etc.

5. what is format specifier ?

A format specifier tells the program what type of data you are working with [integer, float, string etc.] . and how to display it .